TRAVELERS' AID SERVICE PLANNED NATIONAL GUARD

Inaugurated Here by Y. W. C. A.

There is about to be instituted in Salt Lake City, under the management and control of the Young Women's Christian association what is known as travelers' aid service, which is being successfully operated in many other cities, and which has grown out of the great need which is only too apparent at the railway stations at the time of incoming and outgoing trains. In connection with this project, the secretary of the local Y. W. C. A.

the secretary of the local Y. W. C. A. has this to say:

"A worker has been secured, who is to give her time and attention to helping strangers who come to the city. This includes everything a skilled Christian woman can do in the way of ministering to others. There are often those who are ill, some who are aged and feeble, some who are timid and confused, those whose friends have failed to meet them, etc. Many young girls leave their country homes, hoping to get work with big wages, and to enjoy other advantages of city life. Misleading advertisements in the newspapers often attract such girls, and they become an easy prey when they reach the city. It has been proved by statistics that a large per cent of ruined girls are decoyed by the agents, both men and women, of houses of ill-fame, who haunt the stations under various guises.

"The co-operation of the railway officials was secured some months since, and now that the way has opened for the undertaking of this very important work the possible good it may do cannot be over-

STUDY LIGHTING PROBLEM Mayor and City Councilmen Make Personal Investigation.

Mayor John S. Bransford and Council-men Mulvey, Black and Holley were driven about town last evening in automobiles by the officials of the Welsbach Street Lighting company and the Utah Gas & Coke company. The purpose of the trip was to study the street lighting problem to be solved soon by the council. The gas company still contends that the city can be better illumined and at a smaller cost by gas than by electricity. Friday night before the mayor and the council committee made a similar trip through the city. On that occasion they were the guests of the Utah Light & Railway company, which is furnishing the electric lights.

DIVORCES ARE GRANTED.

Two Matrimonial Discards Are Returned to the Deck.

In it the best young men of our land are taught in peace how to do those things which they would have to do when trouble comes—to shoot, to cook, to camp, to march, to give and to obey orders.

Obligation of Citizens.

"In a country like ours, where the burden of a standing army is not placed upon the people, where we must, of necessity, depend in time of war upon the citizens, every male inhabitant ought to feel proud and glad to give as much time as he can afford in peace to preparing himself to fight the country's battles in war. War of itself is essentially—an evil, an evil which we would all avoid, when we can with honor, but the surest way to lessen the chances of our becoming involved in war, the plainest plan to preserve peace is preparation. The National Guard then is primarily a training school, in which our citizens as can be instructed in the use of the military rifle.

Support Is Essential.

"The men who serve in the National her, she did not know of any reasons for his action, and if there was any she treasures it as a domestic secret. Wilcox apparently did not care whether she received a divorce or not, for he consented in writing that default be entered. The decree carried with it no order for alimony.

Service is taken from their civil employments or their pleasures. We cannot appreciate nor praise them too highly for their noble unselfishness, but all their labor and interest goes for nothing unless the people among whom they live believe in them, and stand behind them. In late years more than formerly the realization has come to our people that the National Cuerd ought to be so organized in peace. Guard ought to be so organized in peace as to closely resemble the regular army, so that when ordered into the field in so that when ordered into the field in the event of war there might be practically no difference between the organizations. That I say has been the idea of our people and it has been also the tendency of recent national legislation, but it is not possible to accomplish the desired result unless the citizens of the state feel their responsibility for doing it. Not all citizens are so situated as to allow them to serve in the National Guard; not all citizens are physically fit to do so, but everyone of such citizens can discharge in part the debt he owes to his country by assisting, aiding and supporting those who are ing, adding and supporting those who are trying to make the National Guard of the United States what it ought to be.

Rifle Practice Vital.

"One of the most important items of knowledge to a soldier is that which allows him to make the fullest use of the weapon with which he is armed. Skill with the rifle is becoming less common each year in this country among the general body of our citizens, as the supply of game grows less and less. The purpose of the National Rifle Association of America is to encourage rifle practice among our citizens with every form of rifle, but to particularly assist in the instruction of men in the use of the military rifle. It seeks to accomplish this tary rifle. It seeks to accomplish this purpose largely through affiliated organpurpose largely through affiliated organizations, viz: State associations, regimental associations, civilian rifle clubs, college rifle clubs and school-boy rifle clubs. Most of the states already have state associations and I have organized here the Utah State Rifle association. It should be of much use in accomplishing the promotion of rifle practice in Utah.

"Pifle practice has taken a very de-motion of rifle practice in Utah.

"Rifle practice has taken a very decided step forward in this country during the past year or two. The great national rifle matches of the United States were held this year at Camp Perry, Ohio. Over 1,200 contestants were present, forty-eight teams of twelve men each, representing respectively the infantry of the army, the cavalry of the army, the navy, marine corps, naval academy and forty-three states and territories competed. Utah was not represented in this match, but I am assured that she will be, in the one which will take place next year.

assured that she will be, in the one which will take place next year.

"After the conclusion of this match the National Rifle association took to Ottawa, Canada, a team of American riflemen to compete against teams from Canada, Australia and England for the celebrated plama long range rifle trophy. The American team finished first in the contest, breaking every world's record for similar conditions. The result was especially gratifing to all Americans inasmuch as the weapons used were the military arms of the respective countries and also that the American team finished firing at every range from twenty-one to also that the American team finished lif-ing at every range from twenty-one to thirty-one minutes before the other con-testants. An additional cause for gratifi-cation was the fact that the teams from the other countries were acknowledged to be the best which had ever been sent out from them."

"One of the first duties which a state of this Union owes to the nation is its best efforts to maintain within its borders a National Guard organization of reasonable strength and high efficiency. A progressive state, one which desires to make itself a worthy part of this great nation has many obligations to fulfill, not the least of which is a due consideration for the welfare of the National Guard organization of the United States
